The annual Minerals Conference is done and dusted for this year.

The Minerals Conference in Launceston was a stand-out event. There were some 150 delegates and some great information, ranging from advanced exploration prospects through to the national economic outlook and an insightful overview of China's amazing development story. We will endeavour to have the talks on the website within a couple of weeks. We first need the permission of the speakers.

Our thanks to the speakers and sponsors and we trust the delegates also found it a worthwhile two days.
